Disability, Climate & Universal Design

Project focus & aim

The increased risks for people with disabilities in cases of climate emergencies, e.g. hurricanes, floodings and heatwaves.

To analyse the potential for a legal case against Denmark as the rights of people with disabilities are not safeguarded in the climate policies

THE UNDERLYING NEEDS

To enhance the consultation and involvement of people with disabilities in the climate policy-making process

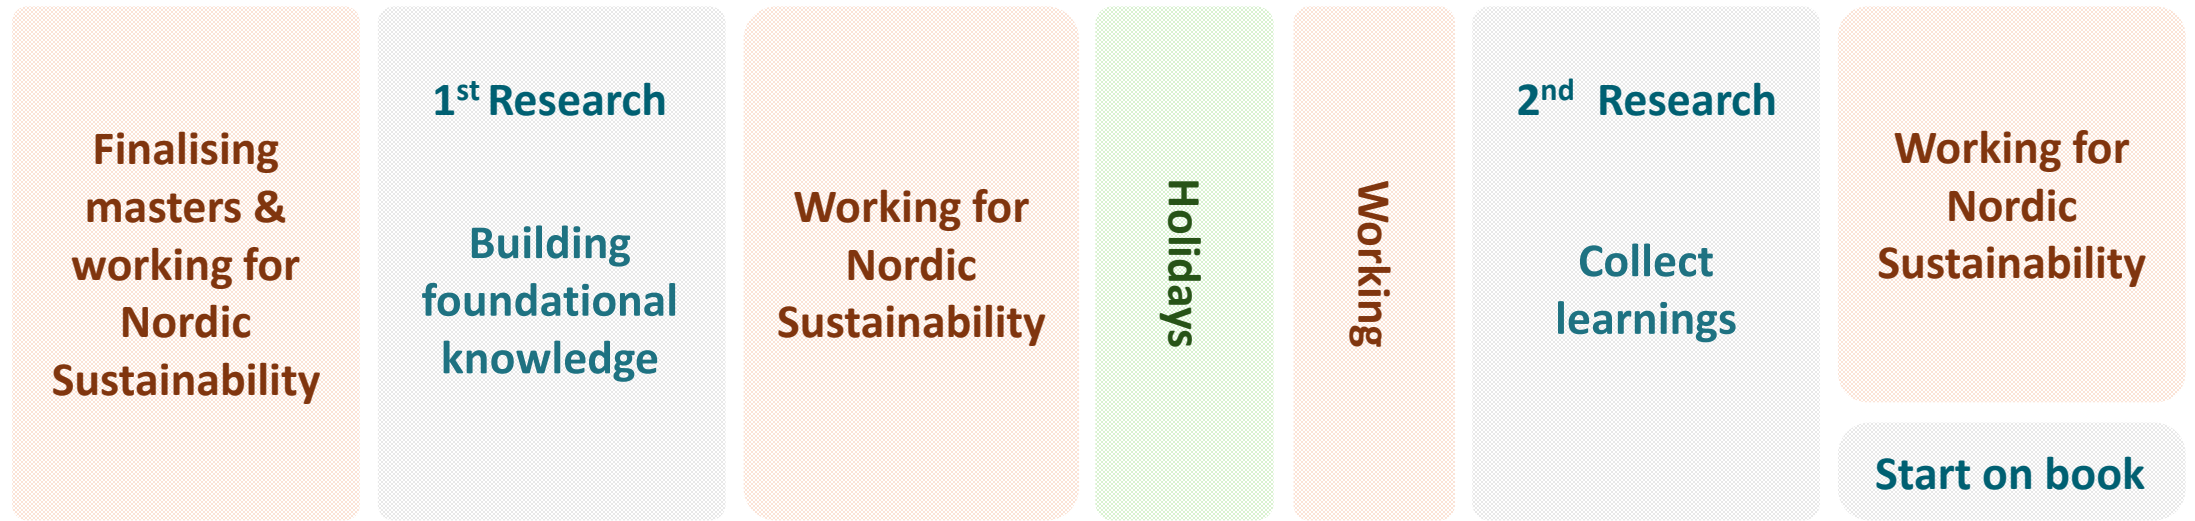

To connect Denmark to a wider international network and form an enhanced global understanding of the most significant disability-specific climate risks

The 'rough' 2024 project timeline
